The Whitman, Putnam, Merrill and Wilson families are combined in this book because these four families are intertwined by tragedy and adoption, so one family cannot be listed alone. This is their story. As you read through this introduction you will understand why this book combines all four families, for they are all really one big generous family, taking care of children who have no one else with love and kindness.

Our search for the Whitman family started in 1978. At that time I was new to genealogy, but we were given so much information to start with, who would know it would take 29 years to finally find the first link to the family tree. The first part of this fascinating story of these four families came from Bob's paternal grandmother Libbie Whitman Fluegge. On a visit to her at a nursing home in Galesburg when she was in her 90's, without prompting she started to tell Bob the story of her family. She remembered her grandfather Laban Putnam telling her about his reminiscences of the War of 1812. She then told him the story of her grandmother Libbie Dalton Putnam Whitman Wilson. Libbie Dalton's parents were struggling farmers in Illinois and couldn't raise their children adequately. As was the practice of the time they advertised for a family to take on their oldest daughter to work for them. Laban and Elvira Putnam from Vermont ran an Inn in Palatine, IL and had recently lost their only child so they answered the ad. The eldest daughter was terribly shy and could not bear to leave her family, but there was Libbie a happy 8 year old who fell in love with the Putnams and went to live with them. Libbie was born in 1847 and we know that she wasn't adopted by the Putnam family until at least 1852, so we tried to find her Dalton family in the Chicago area in the 1850 census with no success. Then we tried to find her in the 1860 census with the Putnam family still with no success. From the Palatine Historical Society we learned that the Putnam family had left Palatine for a number of years and had lived in Michigan, but we couldn't find them in the Michigan census either and had no real connection with Libbie and the Putnam family until 1870 when our ancestor Frank Whitman shows up on the census in Palatine with the Putnam family listed as his grandparents. Already having a mystery with Libbie we were further confused with her first husband Albert. We knew from family information he was born in New York and his tombstone was in Palatine, Illinois so we assumed they had lived and died there, but there was no information on the Whitman family in Palatine. In Laban Putnam's Biography in Andrea's History of Cook County, Illinois, published in 1884, it stated that the Putnam family only had one child and that she had died. This was very confusing because we knew of their first daughter who had died, but by 1884 Libbie had also died. We knew that she had been married twice, once to Albert Whitman of New York and then to John Wilson of Palatine. Also in Andrea's History of Cook County, Illinois, there is a biography of her second husband John Wilson, and his marriage to Mrs. Libbie Whitman who had been born in Arlington Heights, Illinois. Since we hadn't been able to find any Dalton families in the area, now we had a real dilemma. At the time she was born, Arlington Heights was called Dunton, Illinois after a family that owned most of the land there. With the name Dalton being so close to the name Dunton, we thought maybe the reason we couldn't find her in the 1850 census was because we had the surname wrong. But again we couldn't find a Libbie or Elizabeth (the usual real name of someone called Libbie) with a Dunton family either.

We gathered information from the tombstones in Hillside Cemetery in Palatine (by the way, Libbie Putnam has the unique privilege of having not one but two headstones fully engraved at Hillside Cemetery in Palatine, Illinois, one with each husband's plot). It had her and Albert's birth and death dates and that same information of their four children. We knew that the second son, our ancestor Frank, had been born in Palatine in 1866, his older brother Willy had been born in 1864 and died in 1865. After Frank came Georgie born in 1868 and Ray born in 1869 and we had assumed they all were born in Illinois. The break in the family mystery finally came last year. With Ancestry.com I finally found the Whitman family on an 1870 census record. Libbie and Albert were enumerated in Hastings Minnesota in 1870. Listed on the census is Albert 30, Libbie C 22., Franklin B. 4 and what looks like Jay (but maybe Ray) age 2. Missing is George who would fit the age of the child listed as Jay and then no mention of Ray who is listed on the tombstone as born in 1/1869. Ray dies in 12/1870 and Georgie and Albert both die in 1871, Albert in January and Georgie in July. Due to the Chicago fire in October of 1871 there are no records of births or deaths available before that date, so I don't know if they died in Minnesota or Illinois and are just buried in Illinois with her family the Putnam's. What I do know is that Libbie returned to Palatine with her son Frank. In 1875 she married John Wilson a widower and farmer and they had two children, the first one Rollin, died at age 4 and then she had a daughter Libbie In the 1880 census of Palatine, Illinois, Libbie is listed with her husband John Wilson and Frank is living with the Putnam family.

. Libbie Dotin Putnam Whitman Wilson died in 1884. John Wilson remarried and moved with his new wife and daughter to Tempe, AZ. His wife died and he married again for the fourth time in Arizona and died in 1909. His daughter Libbie married Congressman James Cooper Goodwin and they had four children. Their house in Tempe is an historical landmark today and the Goodwin descendants still are there in Tempe.

As if the early tragic deaths of Albert and Libbie weren't enough, history repeats itself. Frank Whitman marries Emma Morrill in 1887 and they have two children, Grandmother Libbie born 1888 and Frank born 1890. In August of 1890 Frank who is a telegraph operator for the railroad is killed in a freak train accident and in October Emma dies from TB. Grandmother Libbie was raised by her grandparents Laban and Elvira Putnam until the death of Elvira in 1898, while Frank goes to live with the Morrill family in Minnesota. There are differing stories on what happens to Libbie after Elvira's death. In the biography of Herbert Merrill, who was the principal of the Palatine School and a friend of the Putnam and Whitman families, it says that he adopted Libbie in 1898, but on the 1900 census she is living in Minnesota with her uncle Edgar Morrill and his family. But her life was not easy, she had polio and could not adapt to the life in Minnesota as well. Her life with the Merrill's was happy. Nina was an artist and gave Libby a hand painted lamp that she treasured all her life. She attended Austin High School in Chicago. The Merrill's had two children, Helen who died at age 1 and Frank who was like the brother that Libby had but who lived with another Morrill relative. It was Frank Merrill who introduced Libby to her future husband Robert Herman Fluegge, who was a fellow student at Lewis Institute of Chicago. (While writing this introduction I may have found another break in the mystery. I went to recheck the 1870 census to verify that the listed children were born in Illinois, and for the first time I saw that the family they are listed just below is a Harvey Dotin (Doten?), I couldn't figure out why the Whitman's were living in Minnesota and this might be the key. Check back on further developments in this story.) In order to explain this importance of this fact I have to tell you that also just last year a cousin found a hand written note with the family tree of Libbie Dotin (Doten) and Albert Whitman married in Michigan. Finally after all these years I went on line and found the marriage record of Albert Whitman to Libbie Doten in Newaygo County, Michigan. With this new information lo and behold there I found Libbie, Laban and Elvira Putnam on the 1860 census of Newaygo County Michigan. The Putnam's were in lumbering and running a boarding house and living at the boarding house was Albert and Chauncey Whitman father and son and nearby Chauncey's father Benjamin. Finally I had found the Whitman connection.

As with all genealogists you hope that with this important information you have finally broken through that brick wall and are on your way. But once again we have run into yet another brick wall although through the male line we have traced the family back to an ancestor named Valentine Whitman, born in Rhode Island. Our direct line starts in Rhode Island, moves to Vermont through various counties there and moves the family first to Essex County, New York then to Franklin County, New York and later to Newaygo County, Michigan.

From census records, death, marriage, local histories and the pension files of Edgar Orlando Whitman we have been able to put together some of the pieces of the Whitman family tree. The brick walls in the Whitman family tree are, of course, the maternal sides. We have no idea what the names of the mothers of both Chauncey or his son Albert are. First the mystery of Chauncey's mother starts with information from the 1820 census. Benjamin is listed with his household as 1 male under 10 which could be either Chauncey or Orlando, and one male 26-45, and with 2 females under 10 (we have absolutely no information on them) and one female 26-45, which makes his wife about the same age as he is. In the tree on-line we have we used Soper as perhaps the maiden name of Benjamin's first wife. Their youngest son has the middle name of Soper and as with many family traditions this could be a family surname we did this in hopes that with anyone with Soper family information will spot it and provide a link to our family. By 1830 the census in Crown Point, Essex County, New York, lists the household as one male under 5-10, one male 10-15 and one male 40-50 and then one female under 5 and one female 20-30 which is consistent with the age of his second wife, Betsey Monroe, born about 1807, but not old enough to be the mother of Chauncey, Orlando or Benjamin. In the 1840 census Orlando, Chauncey and Benjamin are listed separately in Franklin County, New York on the same sheet. Benjamin's household contains the information on his family with Betsey, 1 male under 5, 1 male 15-20 and 1 male 50-60, 1 female under 5, 1 female 5-10, 1 female 10-15 and one female 30-40. Orlando's household contains 1 male under 5, 1 male 20-30, 1 female under 5 and 1 female 20-30. Chauncey's household contains 1 male under 5, 1 male 20-30, 1 female 5-10 and 1 female 20-30. Our second mystery concerning Chauncey's wife comes from information from the biography of William Whitman, son of Chauncey. This was confusing to begin with. He stated his mother had died in 1842 and the family moved shortly after that. At first glance it appeared that this was in error. When checking the 1850 census in Franklin County, New York, Chauncey is listed with a wife named Deborah who fits in the same age bracket with the older female listed on the 1840 census, so we assumed (bad word for genealogists) there had been an error in the biography of William. On the 1860 census, after they move to Michigan, Chauncey (with no wife listed), Albert and Edgar are living at the Inn of Laban Putnam. Lo and behold new information from a descendant of James Whitman, a brother of Benjamin, we discovered that the Deborah on the census was Chauncey's second wife and she had been married previously to his cousin James Madison Whitman. So here we are at square one and I hope someone else out there reading this can help us find these missing women.

Whitman, Putnam, Wilson, Merrill Families

One notation from the recent research. I am convinced that Herbert Merrill taking in Libbie Whitman was not just a random act of kindness. I am sure that the Whitman, Merrill and Putnam families are one in the same. In each family's tree these name appear together in the same places from Vermont to Michigan and there are intermarriages of these names, so when Libbie called him Uncle Herbert, we think there was a reason for that. We haven't found the direct link, but we are looking. We have recently received information from Vermont and there are several new updates to previous information on line. So Enjoy.

EDWARD R. QUIGLEY

Contributed by Jan Cortez

Edward R. Quigley, farmer, sec. 2, Deerfield Tp., P.O. Altona, is a son of George and Jane Quigley, the former a native of New York, the latter of Wales. They were married in Canada, where their son was born Dec. 19, 1845. When he was seven years of age his parents came to Newaygo Co., Mich., afterward settling in Mecosta County, where they were the first white settlers of the township of Deerfield. (See sketch of David Quigley.)

Mr. Quigley passed the years of his life in acquiring an education, and as assistant on his father's farm. At 17 he engaged in lumbering, and pursued that branch of business until 1881, when he began to devote his attention exclusively to farming. In 1876 he bought 56 acres of forest land, built a house, and now has 25 acres under cultivation. Mr. Quigley is an adherent to the Democratic political tenets, and is zealous in the interests of the party.

He was married in Muskegon County, Sept. 3, 1863, to Fannie Barnhart. Her parents settle in Mecosta County in the year 1862. She died, leaving one child, Walter, born July 4, 1864. Harriet, daughter of Benjamin and Betsey (Monroe) Whitman, became the wife of Mr. Quigley Nov. 22, 1868. One child was born of this marriage, Oriel, whose birth occurred Oct. 15, 1869, and death Jan. 22, 1882. The father and mother of Mrs. Quigley were natives of the State of New York.

Biography of Elizabeth (Libbie) E. Dalton-Putnam

As told by her granddaughter Libby E. Whitman Fluegge
and information from biographies in the Palatine Historical Society

Libbie E. Dalton was born in Arlington Heights, Illinois 12/27/1847. Her family was struggling just to get by and in 1857 it became obvious they could no longer support the whole family. They placed an ad in a local newspaper for their older daughter to be adopted by a local family where she could work in service. Laban and Elvira Putnam, from Palatine, Illinois who ran an Inn and farm answered the ad. The older daughter was so painfully shy they couldn't imagine separating her from her family. But a younger daughter Libbie was so extroverted and happy, that the Putnam's asked could they adopt her instead. The Dalton family agreed and Libbie went to live with the Putnam family in Palatine, Illinois. In 1863 she married Albert Whitman of the state of New York. They had four children, Willie, Georgie, Ray, who all died in childhood and Frank A., who married Emma Morrill of Hamilton (West Salem), Wisconsin. Albert died in 1871 and Libbie married James Wilson of Palatine, Illinois. They had two children, Rollin, who died in infancy and Libbie J., who later married Arizona politician James Goodwin in Tempe, Az. In 1883 Libbie died in Palatine and was buried at Hillside Cemetery in Palatine, Illinois. There are two headstones in Hillside Cemetery one listed with her name and Albert, Willie, Georgie, and Ray and another one on the other side of the cemetery with her and Rollin's names.

4/8/1866 A. Whitman married E. Whitman - dropped from church rolls. [Allfam3.FTW]

Biography of Elizabeth (Libbie) E. Dalton-Putnam

As told by her granddaughter Libby E. Whitman Fluegge
and information from biographies in the Palatine Historical Society

Libbie E. Dalton was born in Arlington Heights, Illinois 12/27/1847. Her family was struggling just to get by and in 1857 it became obvious they could no longer support the whole family. They placed an ad in a local newspaper for their older daughter to be adopted by a local family where she could work in service. Laban and Elvira Putnam, from Palatine, Illinois who ran an Inn and farm answered the ad. The older daughter was so painfully shy they couldn't imagine separating her from her family. But a younger daughter Libbie was so extroverted and happy, that the Putnam's asked could they adopt her instead. The Dalton family agreed and Libbie went to live with the Putnam family in Palatine, Illinois. In 1863 she married Albert Whitman of the state of New York. They had four children, Willie, Georgie, Ray, who all died in childhood and Frank A., who married Emma Morrill of Hamilton (West Salem), Wisconsin. Albert died in 1871 and Libbie married James Wilson of Palatine, Illinois. They had two children, Rollin, who died in infancy and Libbie J., who later married Arizona politician James Goodwin in Tempe, Az. In 1883 Libbie died in Palatine and was buried at Hillside Cemetery in Palatine, Illinois. There are two headstones in Hillside Cemetery one listed with her name and Albert, Willie, Georgie, and Ray and another one on the other side of the cemetery with her and Rollin's names.

Additional note: From the Methodist Episcopal Church of Palatine, Illinois,
4/8/1866 A. Whitman married E. Whitman - dropped from church rolls. [Allfam3.FTW]

Notes for James Cooper Goodwin:

Historical information from: Maricopa County Historical Society

James C. Goodwin, Member of the Assembly from Maricopa County Nineteenth Legislature.

Ralls County, in the extreme northeastern part of Missouri, is the place that knew the nativity of the youngest member from Maricopa County; the date, March, 1864. Mr. Goodwin's parents were of sturdy rural stock, both born and reared in the same locality. He was the eldest son of a large family, now residing with the exception of a sister, in Arizona. Mr. Goodwin, after securing the education of local schools, went at the age of eighteen, to the Pacific Coast. He spent some time on a trip comprising within it nearly all the prominent coast points and for a while studied at Hesperian College, Woodland, California. Returning to Missouri, his ideas were soon diverted to Arizona and he went to Tombstone, arriving there in March 1884. Drifting to Bisbee, he thence took passage on a buckboard for Tempe, where he has since held residence. He took up land seven miles south of Tempe and there, soon joined by several brothers, started farming on an extensive scale, securing water from the Tempe canal by the construction of the now important Goodwin branch. During the past six years Mr. Goodwin has been much interested in railway construction, securing the right of way for and building the Phoenix, Mesa and Tempe railway and was elected and served as first president and general manager for the company. This road is now a part of the Maricopa and Phoenix and Salt River Valley railway. He also built the only such road in the United States that never charges a fare. He is now making arrangements for the construction of an electric railway from Phoenix to Mesa City by way of Tempe. Mr. Goodwin is one of the most consistent and strongest of Democrats, but now occupies the first office hat his party has conferred upon him. He is deeply interested in the rental of the school lands and is chairman of the house committee having that matter in charge.

Survey Number: HPS-243

Name: Farmer/Goodwin House

Location: 820 S. Farmer

Year Built: 1883

Architectural Style: Folk Victorian/Georgian Revival

The primary significance of the Farmer/Goodwin House is its association with two prominent figures in the history of Tempe: Hiram Bradford Farmer and James Cooper Goodwin. The house is also one of the best-preserved and unique adobe structures in the state. Pierce Carrick Shannon, a local saloonkeeper, purchased the land in 1880. He completed construction of the house in March of 1883. At that time, it was one of the largest residences in the small community then growing upon the south side of the Salt River. Shannon encountered a number of financial difficulties, and when he was sent to Yuma Territorial Prison for selling liquor to Indians, the property passed out of his hands. In January of 1886, the property was sold to Hiram Bradford Farmer for $3,000. Farmer became the first professor and principal at the Territorial Normal School, which opened in Tempe in February of 1886 (it is now known as ASU). In addition to serving as a residence for its first administrator, the house also served as a dormitory for young women students who came to the school from out of town. When the railroad arrived in 1887, Farmer was inspired to develop his 160 acres into one of the town's early subdivisions, known as Farmer's Addition. After Farmer left the Salt River Valley in 1890, the house passed through a number of owners until it was acquired in 1897 by James Wilson. When Wilson's daughter, Libbie, married James C. Goodwin in 1902, the house was deeded to her. James Goodwin was a prominent Tempe rancher and businessman, who first came to the community in the 1880s. He was a member of Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders during the Spanish-American War, and he was elected to the Arizona Territorial Legislature in 1897, and served in the Arizona State Legislature from 1915 to 1918. The house continued to be owned by the Goodwin family until the death of James and Libbie's son, Woodrow Wilson Goodwin, in 1992.

The Farmer/Goodwin House is a good example of a Folk expression of Victorian-era architecture. Its massing is similar to other Victorian-era styles, but this building lacks the "gingerbread" detailing often found in Victorian-era buildings. It is a one-and-a-half story adobe structure, rectangular in plan, surmounted by a hipped roof punctuated by ten flush wall dormers. It is symmetrical both in plan and elevation; the east and west facades are divided into three equal bays. The exterior adobe walls are finished with plaster, which has been scored with lines to simulate cut stone construction. The corners are detailed with quoins of built-up plaster. In plan the house is composed of a central hall or zaguan with approximately equal-sized rooms disposed symmetrically on either side of it. The room arrangement is identical on the upper story, and access is by a stairway in the central hall. The wall dormers are a character-defining element, as well as the front veranda porch, which was recently rebuilt.

Biography of Elizabeth (Libbie) E. Dalton-Putnam

As told by her granddaughter Libby E. Whitman Fluegge
and information from biographies in the Palatine Historical Society

Libbie E. Dalton was born in Arlington Heights, Illinois 12/27/1847. Her family was struggling just to get by and in 1857 it became obvious they could no longer support the whole family. They placed an ad in a local newspaper for their older daughter to be adopted by a local family where she could work in service. Laban and Elvira Putnam, from Palatine, Illinois who ran an Inn and farm answered the ad. The older daughter was so painfully shy they couldn't imagine separating her from her family. But a younger daughter Libbie was so extroverted and happy, that the Putnam's asked could they adopt her instead. The Dalton family agreed and Libbie went to live with the Putnam family in Palatine, Illinois. In 1863 she married Albert Whitman of the state of New York. They had four children, Willie, Georgie, Ray, who all died in childhood and Frank A., who married Emma Morrill of Hamilton (West Salem), Wisconsin. Albert died in 1871 and Libbie married James Wilson of Palatine, Illinois. They had two children, Rollin, who died in infancy and Libbie J., who later married Arizona politician James Goodwin in Tempe, Az. In 1883 Libbie died in Palatine and was buried at Hillside Cemetery in Palatine, Illinois. There are two headstones in Hillside Cemetery one listed with her name and Albert, Willie, Georgie, and Ray and another one on the other side of the cemetery with her and Rollin's names.

4/8/1866 A. Whitman married E. Whitman - dropped from church rolls. [Allfam3.FTW]

Notes for James Cooper Goodwin:

Historical information from: Maricopa County Historical Society

James C. Goodwin, Member of the Assembly from Maricopa County Nineteenth Legislature.

Ralls County, in the extreme northeastern part of Missouri, is the place that knew the nativity of the youngest member from Maricopa County; the date, March, 1864. Mr. Goodwin's parents were of sturdy rural stock, both born and reared in the same locality. He was the eldest son of a large family, now residing with the exception of a sister, in Arizona. Mr. Goodwin, after securing the education of local schools, went at the age of eighteen, to the Pacific Coast. He spent some time on a trip comprising within it nearly all the prominent coast points and for a while studied at Hesperian College, Woodland, California. Returning to Missouri, his ideas were soon diverted to Arizona and he went to Tombstone, arriving there in March 1884. Drifting to Bisbee, he thence took passage on a buckboard for Tempe, where he has since held residence. He took up land seven miles south of Tempe and there, soon joined by several brothers, started farming on an extensive scale, securing water from the Tempe canal by the construction of the now important Goodwin branch. During the past six years Mr. Goodwin has been much interested in railway construction, securing the right of way for and building the Phoenix, Mesa and Tempe railway and was elected and served as first president and general manager for the company. This road is now a part of the Maricopa and Phoenix and Salt River Valley railway. He also built the only such road in the United States that never charges a fare. He is now making arrangements for the construction of an electric railway from Phoenix to Mesa City by way of Tempe. Mr. Goodwin is one of the most consistent and strongest of Democrats, but now occupies the first office hat his party has conferred upon him. He is deeply interested in the rental of the school lands and is chairman of the house committee having that matter in charge.

Survey Number: HPS-243

Name: Farmer/Goodwin House

Location: 820 S. Farmer

Year Built: 1883

Architectural Style: Folk Victorian/Georgian Revival

The primary significance of the Farmer/Goodwin House is its association with two prominent figures in the history of Tempe: Hiram Bradford Farmer and James Cooper Goodwin. The house is also one of the best-preserved and unique adobe structures in the state. Pierce Carrick Shannon, a local saloonkeeper, purchased the land in 1880. He completed construction of the house in March of 1883. At that time, it was one of the largest residences in the small community then growing upon the south side of the Salt River. Shannon encountered a number of financial difficulties, and when he was sent to Yuma Territorial Prison for selling liquor to Indians, the property passed out of his hands. In January of 1886, the property was sold to Hiram Bradford Farmer for $3,000. Farmer became the first professor and principal at the Territorial Normal School, which opened in Tempe in February of 1886 (it is now known as ASU). In addition to serving as a residence for its first administrator, the house also served as a dormitory for young women students who came to the school from out of town. When the railroad arrived in 1887, Farmer was inspired to develop his 160 acres into one of the town's early subdivisions, known as Farmer's Addition. After Farmer left the Salt River Valley in 1890, the house passed through a number of owners until it was acquired in 1897 by James Wilson. When Wilson's daughter, Libbie, married James C. Goodwin in 1902, the house was deeded to her. James Goodwin was a prominent Tempe rancher and businessman, who first came to the community in the 1880s. He was a member of Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders during the Spanish-American War, and he was elected to the Arizona Territorial Legislature in 1897, and served in the Arizona State Legislature from 1915 to 1918. The house continued to be owned by the Goodwin family until the death of James and Libbie's son, Woodrow Wilson Goodwin, in 1992.

The Farmer/Goodwin House is a good example of a Folk expression of Victorian-era architecture. Its massing is similar to other Victorian-era styles, but this building lacks the "gingerbread" detailing often found in Victorian-era buildings. It is a one-and-a-half story adobe structure, rectangular in plan, surmounted by a hipped roof punctuated by ten flush wall dormers. It is symmetrical both in plan and elevation; the east and west facades are divided into three equal bays. The exterior adobe walls are finished with plaster, which has been scored with lines to simulate cut stone construction. The corners are detailed with quoins of built-up plaster. In plan the house is composed of a central hall or zaguan with approximately equal-sized rooms disposed symmetrically on either side of it. The room arrangement is identical on the upper story, and access is by a stairway in the central hall. The wall dormers are a character-defining element, as well as the front veranda porch, which was recently rebuilt.
